

Highly Respected Resident of Heath Passes Suddenly

The Heath and Wainwright districts have been shocked at the untimely death of several of their respected citizens and the passing of Mrs. D. Potvin Sunday evening last adds another name to the list.

Death came suddenly to Mrs. Potvin after the brief illness of only an hour. She was in good health when she left her home in the car Sunday evening to go to the home of Mrs. Lapierre, who was preparing for the threshers. She was accompanied by her daughter. She suddenly went unconscious in the car and when taken to the home of Mrs. Lapierre she passed away. Medical aid was administered by Dr. Wallace but nothing could be done to save her.

Mrs. Potvin was but 47 years old and had spent the greatest part of 13 years in this district. She was born at Lake St. John, Quebec, She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her husband, two daughters, Alma and Alberta, and two sons Henry and Edward. Her mother, Mrs. Parent, lives in Prince Albert, Sask. Mrs. Potvin has also six brothers in Prince Albert, Octave, Edmund, Adolphus, Abraham, Louis and Noel. Albert Parent, a brother, lives in Montreal and one sister resides in Minnesota.

The funeral was held from the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Wainwright at 10 a.m. Wednesday morning; Rev. Father Hugo Doyle sang the Mass of Requiem. The pallbearers were L. Leduc, R. Chartier, L. Lapierre, S. Rajotte, P. Brassard, A. Touchette. R. I. P.

OBITUARY

Tuesday, Sept. 19th, Mr. W. Avison, passed away at his home. The deceased, aged 90 years, was born in Durham County, England and has for the past 13 years resided on a farm some 12 miles north of Edgerton.

The body was shipped to Orangeville, Ont., Thursday night for burial, the funeral service having been held at Edgar Avison's residence before the body left.

The pallbearers were: E. Knott, T. Macfay, L. Oxy, R. Brady, J. Louis, H. Cotton.

Three daughters, who are living in the East and two sons, Walter and Edgar, of this district, are left to mourn his loss. His wife predeceased him some years ago.

McLeod & Son handled all funeral arrangements.

Rebekahs And Friends Hold Delightful Evening

Thursday evening the members of Adeline Rebekah Lodge, No. 54, together with their friends, spent a delightful evening at their Lodge Hall. Directly following the closing of Lodge, tables were drawn out and the game of "Cootie" was hilariously played, honors going to Mrs. Ramsay of Irma and Mr. Lawrence Goulet.

A delicious lunch was then served by the committee, after which a short dance was enjoyed by those present.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

The Junior W.A. of St. Thomas Church met at the Vicarage on Monday, Sept. 18th, and were full of enthusiasm for the winter's work. Mrs. C. N. Bateman will be in charge of this work to the end of the year. Plans were made to take up Missionary study, and several members expressed willingness to enter the oral competition. Plans are in progress for a concert some time this winter. Phyllis Montgomery and Eileen Graham were appointed a visiting committee for the coming month. In future the meeting will be held alternate Tuesdays and not Mondays as in the past. The next meeting will be at the Vicarage on Tuesday, October 3rd.

On Wednesday evening, Sept. 20th, the St. Thomas W.A. held a very successful Whist Drive in the Masonic Hall. Some twenty tables were in play and every one seemed very sociable and jolly. Mr. E. Moore acted as M.C. The prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies first, Mrs. Taggart; from California; Ladies second, Mrs. Frank Horn; Ladies consolation, Miss E. K. Hart. Gent's first, Mrs. G. Arkwright, (playing as gent); Gent's second, Mr. F. Hart; consolation, Joe Collett. Special hidden prize was won by Miss E. Aldridge. Our thanks are extended to all those who helped to make the evening such a success.

Rev. C. N. Bateman, R.D., and Rev. Wilson of Edgerton, left on Monday afternoon to attend a meeting of the Wainwright Deanery held this week at Viking.

Owing to the Field Meet at Vermilion, on Friday the St. Thomas choir will practice on Thursday this week at 7:30 p.m.

Harvest Festival will be held on Sunday next at St. Thomas and at Gilt Edge. On Friday afternoon and Saturday afternoon voluntary workers, both male and female, are asked to meet at the church for the purpose of decorating. Gifts of any kind may be left at the Vicarage or in the church.

Mrs. M. Cardell was a tea hostess on Friday afternoon last when she entertained informally several of her friends. The afternoon was spent in sewing and a old fashioned sing song. Mrs. Washburn poured tea and Mrs. Cardell was assisted in serving by Miss Betty Cardell and Mrs. R. Parsons.

Rev. Wilson, of Edgerton, will be the special preacher for the Harvest Festival services at Battle Heights and at Irma (Anglican) on October 8th, also at St. Thomas for Evening song.

Thieves Enter Premises Local Store Wednesday

Last Wednesday night, Sept. 20th, robbers broke into the store of Rudd and Patterson, taking shoes, suits, cigarettes, cash from the till, etc. The total loss is estimated at about $100.00. There has yet been no trace found of the robbers.

Curling Rink Being Erected on 4th Ave

After endeavoring since 1929 to have a substantial curling rink erected in the Town, it will not be long until this is an established fact. Ground has already been broken for a new rink on 4th Ave. W. In the presence of the committee, the first sod was turned by Mr. D. L. Plimton and construction is to be commenced immediately.

Up to the present the curling association has already forty-five paid up members and it is to be hoped that the membership will exceed fifty.

The building will contain two sheets of ice to commence with, but eventually it will be made into a three or four sheet rink.

It is impossible for the committee to reach every one interested in this sport, therefore, if there are any persons who have not already been approached and intend joining the club, they are requested to communicate with Mr. W. J. O'Callaghan, secretary of the organization, who will be ready to make all the necessary arrangements.

Mr. Langran, traveler for the J. I. Case Company, had the misfortune of having the gas taken out of his car last week during the night. The car was right out on Main street. Cases of this kind are becoming all too frequent. May this be a warning to our owners.

Town Council Minutes

The Wainwright Town Council met in regular session on Tuesday evening of last week, September 19th, 1933.

The members of Council present at the meeting were Mayor Forster and Councillors Adams, Welch, McLeod, Billing and Courcier.

The recorded proceedings of Council at its regular meeting of September 6th, 1933, were adopted and confirmed as written.

Mr. E. Donovan wrote, offering $10.00 for Lot 19 in Block 10 Plan 6445 V on which his dwelling is located, and, on motion, the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to inform Mr. Donovan of the state of arrears against the said lots and that he may acquire title by paying these arrears.

The Department of Old Age Pensions wrote that Mrs. C. E. Andrews was making inquiry as to the position of her application for pension.

On motion, it was unanimously resolved that this Council do not approve the application of Mrs. C. Andrews for Old Age Pension, as in the opinion of the Council, the six month residence in this municipality, necessary to make this municipality chargeable, has not been established by her within the contemplation of the Regulations governing the Old Age Pensions.

Mr. Riley Goodrich made application to purchase Lots 16, 17 and 18 in Block 73 Plan 5721 A.D. at the price of $20.00 per lot and, on motion, the application was tabled until the next regular meeting.

Mrs. Edmond Messier made application to purchase Lots 12 and 13 in Block 59 Plan 5721 A.D. at a price of $20.00 and, on motion, her application was accepted.

Mr. W. T. Brunner made written application for permission to erect a sign board on the vacant space intervening between the Patterson store and his theatre on Main Street and, on motion, his application was granted in keeping with the specifications outlined in his application.

The financial statement of the Wainwright Dominion Day Celebration Committee was submitted to Council, showing a surplus of $25.27 which has been paid into the office of the Secretary-Treasurer of the Town of Wainwright.

On motion, it was unanimously resolved that Council go on record as highly appreciative of the effort of the Dominion Day Celebration Committee, for the present year, in planning and staging, in the interests of the town of Wainwright, the thoroughly satisfactory and financially successful demonstration of July 1st, last.

The Committee on Assessment, Property and By-Laws submitted the report hereto attached and, on motion the report was accepted and incorporated in the proceedings of the meeting.

Your Committee on Assessment, Property and By-Laws has made a sincere effort, since your last regular meeting, to carry out the desire of Council as expressed in your last resolution requiring us to interview all former owners of lots, for which title have recently been taken by the Town of Wainwright under instruction of Council, upon which buildings exist by way of improvement. In dealing with such, we have contemplated former owners as including not only former registered owners but

Surprise Party For Mrs. E. Peterson

Mrs. E. Peterson was very pleasantly surprised last Friday when Mrs. J. Welch and Mrs. G. Steel arranged a surprise party in her honor at her home west of town, before her departure to Edmonton to take up her duties as Supervisor at St. Joseph's College.

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent at Court whist, supervised by Mrs. Frank Stevens. There was lots of mirth and laughter when Mrs. E. Gauderton gave a paper suitable to the occasion after which Mrs. Welch presented her with a gift from the ladies present as a token of their goodwill and friendship and wished her all success in her new venture.

Mrs. M. St. Hilair presided at the tea table. Honors at whist going to Mrs. F. Stevens and consolation prize to Mrs. E. Peterson.

also including former owners under agreement to purchase and appointed a meeting with all such in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening of last week, of which meeting ample notice was given in writing to all within reasonable distance, who might attend, by the Secretary-Treasurer. Nevertheless, but one former owner attended while two others were represented by agents.

This Committee, therefore, has had but small opportunity of learning the disposition of these former owners but feeling as we do that there is no intention or desire on the part of this Council to deal harshly or arbitrarily with those who formerly were the owners of such lots, we make the following recommendations in this connection:

1.—That, in case the former owner is at the present time in occupation of the property, he be given the opportunity of paying, on or before the 1st day of November in the present year, to the Town of Wainwright, a sum of money equal to the amount of the current taxes for the year 1933, less any discount regularly deductible and, on payment of this sum, he be granted a monthly tenancy of the property at a monthly rental of an even sum in dollars approximating one-twenty-fourth of the amount of arrears standing on the roll against such property, with a minimum monthly rental of $5.00, payable on the 15th day of November of the present year and thereafter on the 15th of each succeeding month while the said tenancy continues, the Lessee to bear the expense of insuring all buildings thereon in a reasonable amount on any repairs desired by him.

2.—That, in case the former owner is not in occupation but has leased the property to a tenant, he be given the same opportunity as to the payment required from the former owner in occupation to be made on or before the 1st day of November next, on payment of which, the Town of Wainwright will continue the tenancy of the present tenant from month to month, provided the monthly rental now being paid by him be paid to the Town of Wainwright promptly on the 15th of each and every month, the former owner to make up any deficiency between this rental and one-twenty-fourth of the amount of arrears standing on the roll against the property and observe the conditions as to insurance and repairs required in the case of former owners in occupancy.

3.—That, when all arrears now standing against any of such properties are fully discharged by payment of rental or otherwise and all other conditions herein fully fulfilled, the Town of Wainwright will enter into an agreement to sell the property to the former owner at a price equal the amount of taxes then standing on the roll against the said property as taxes levied thereon subsequent to the year 1933, on payment of which price the Town of Wainwright will issue transfer in favor of the purchaser.

4.—That, on failure to make the payment required to be made on or before the 1st day of November next or on failure to pay the rental required on the 15th of each month until ten days after the specified date or failure to observe all other conditions, within a reasonable space of ten days after they should be observed, the Town solicitor be instructed to take necessary proceedings to obtain possession and upon possession being obtained Council deal therewith as it may deem proper.

A delegation appeared before Council in the interests of the promotion of hockey in Wainwright during the coming winter and, after some discussion, the Mayor appointed a meeting between the delegation and Council in the Council Chambers on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

A delegation appeared on behalf of the Curling Club and, after fully discussing the desire of the club to obtain a site for the purpose of erecting a curling rink, on motion, the Mayor and Secretary-Treasurer were authorized to transfer to the club or to trustees for the club satisfactory lots, held by the town in block 14 Plan 6445 V, to serve for the purpose of the club.

The application of Father Doyle to purchase Lots 1 to 6 and 18 to 20, all inclusive, in Block 33 Plan 6445 V, presented at the regular meeting of the 5th inst., came before Council under unfinished business and, on motion, these lots will be sold to Father Doyle for $500.00.

On motion, it was unanimously resolved that the resolution passed by this Council at its regular meeting of June 6th, 1933, providing for the levying of taxes for the year 1933, be amended by striking therefrom the words, "on or before the 1st day of October 1933 and a discount of 5 per cent be allowed on all similar current taxes paid to the Secretary-Treasurer after the said 1st day of October 1933 but on or before the 1st day of November, 1933," where they occur in the said resolution, and by substituting for the words so struck out the words, "on or before the 1st day of November, A.D., 1933."

On motion, Council was regularly adjourned.

Miss E. Davis, Hostess To Number of Friends

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. W. E. Davis assisted by Mrs. R. Coffield entertained a number of the younger people in honor of her daughter, Miss Ella Davis, on the occasion of her seventeenth birthday.

In the early part of the evening there were three cars to take the party on a winter road, returning later and spending an enjoyable evening in dancing and playing games.

Miss Davis was then presented with many very lovely gifts and many happy returns of the day was wished her by her many friends.

The party, breaking up, declared they had a very enjoyable time.

Mrs. W. J. O'Callaghan spent a few days in Edmonton during the past week.

Mrs. H. Driver Succumbs After Long Suffering

Wainwright and district were deeply grieved on Wednesday, Sept. 20th, when news was received in town of the death of Violet Mae Louis, beloved wife of Mr. H. C. Driver, of Fabian, who died in an Edmonton hospital. The deceased was 32 years old.

She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband, a son Lorne, her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Louis, a sister Beth, and two brothers, Alton and Harry, the latter of Edmonton.

THE FUNERAL

was held from the United Church, Saturday, Sept. 23rd, Rev. E. Armstrong assisted by Rev. W. S. Brook, having charge of the service.

HEATH

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mockford, of Coronation, spent the week-end at Clear Lake. They were accompanied by Miss Muriel Charters, also of Coronation.

Miss Alberta Davis, of Arm Lake, expects to leave for Three Hills soon to attend college there.

The Rev. G. W. Wilson presented the St. Patrick's Church of Heath with a bronze cross on behalf of the Sunday School of which he was a teacher before coming to Canada.

The St. Patrick's W.A. of Heath, met at the home of Mrs. Cummings on Thursday last with fourteen ladies present. The hostesses were Miss Hough and Mrs. Cummings.

A new residence is being erected at Heath on the property of the Alberta Pool Elevator.

The pallbearers were: H. Miller, J. Donaldson, Glen Hair, Wilfred Woodward, Roy Hartling and Alf Muddle. Floral tributes were received from Dad and Lorne, wreath; mother and dad, Harry and Alton, spray Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Johnson and family and Cynthia Leslie; Miss Fern Alexander; Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Plaxton and Delmar and Donna; Alf and Lottie; Mr. and Mrs. J. Chynoweth and Della and Ruby; W. J. Plaxton and family; Mr. and Mrs. A. Hughes; Mr. and Mrs. R. Coffield; Mr. and Mrs. L. Minter; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Beasley; Lillian Tibbory; The Wood Family; Tom Hill and family; Mr. and Mrs. Gauderton; Women's Institute; Avondale U.F.W.A.

Funeral arrangements were in charge of McLeod & Son Undertaking Parlor.

Popular Young Couple Join Ranks of Benedicts

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the Wainwright Hotel at 11 a.m., Monday Sept. 25th, when Miss Alma Reich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reich of town, was married to Mr. Harold Lattimer. Rev. W. S. Brooker officiated.

The witnesses were Miss Ida Reich, sister of the bride, and Mr. Kidd. Luncheon was served in the hotel for the immediate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Lattimer left on the evening train for England, where they plan to make their future home.

A GOOD IDEA

A judge in Vancouver recently made a statement in handing down sentence on several youths of rather tender years for some fault called "breaking and entering" ending by stressing the point that parents are responsible for the conduct of their children. This is a truth oft repeated and one that is pertinent ever in this so-called enlightened age.

It has often appeared to me that men take greater care of their stock than they do of their children. If they go in for sheep raising they see to it that there is a man constantly on guard or watch to ward off any danger to the flock from wild animals and to be assured that no one will steal one or more of the animals. If the stock break down a fence, night or day, no matter what hour it is, out goes someone to repair the damage and recapture the straying animals lest danger or injury befall them.

But I wonder if the same care is taken of the children entrusted to our modern parent. The child is an independent unit, who comes and goes as he will, at all hours of the night, wandering about the town streets, in and out of all sorts of places, listening to all sorts of conversations—a master of all he surveys.

We believe children should be out doors as much as possible, but not at night. There is no excuse for local children to be abroad on the streets after supper. Let them play from four till six or six-thirty, but the rest of the evening should be spent on their studies and then early to bed.

The teachers in our schools cannot perform miracles, and unless they have the wholehearted cooperation of the parents, the child will not progress in his studies unless faithful to his homework.

Children are impressionable; they can be formed in good habits by constant repetition of them and an intelligent reason for the so doing. Explain to them the reasons why they should not tramp the streets at night. They can be reasoned with. Try it.

Now, winter will soon be upon us. It has been suggested by some of the Town Fathers that the rink will be reserved for the children at night. If these good men mean school children, I earnestly ask them to consider that they are teaching the child from its tender years to leave its home at night to find sport and amusement

We believe that Friday and Saturday should be for the school children, but as for skating at night during the rest of the week, it should be frowned upon.

Nearly all of the cities and towns are now passing by-laws to enforce a curfew at 7 p.m. and make it unlawful for children, unaccompanied by their parents, to be on the streets at night.

What chance has the teacher to get a pupil to do his homework after he has pushed a puck around for an hour or two or even more strenuously been the King-pen on the snap-the-whip for a levy of the female persuasion. Teach the child that home is a sanctuary where he can find happiness after his school work and several hours of clean sport from four o'clock to 7 p.m. Am I right?

SLAT'S DIARY

Friday—well I guess it has cum to the Parting of the Ways for Mrs. Clara Coke and her husband. They have finally decided to go and get a divorce. Mr. Coke told me the other day that him and his wife did agree on I thing here or lately. He said he told his wife he was a durn fool when he married her, and she agreed he was rite and still was.

Saturday—the preacher has sent for me to cum down to see him on Monday, well I spose I will haf to go and do what he wants me to do, as long as they lssent any thing Crooked about it.

Sunday—ma and pa including me went down to see a nuther new baby with the stork bring to Mr. and Mrs. Foot below the forks. I thot at 1st it looked like its father but its ma told us it had just had a spell of the colic and it diddnt look so good.

Munday—Lake Poe stopped in at are house this evening and sed he was kind of afraid to go home. he sed his wife had threw a plate at him this morning and as he tryed to get away he nocked down a flour Pot and broke it and he is afraide she will be out of yimour.

Tuesday—Ma was a saying today that evry boy shud have a ambition to be President of his country. well mebbey it woud be all rite but Id like a few yrs. driving a nice big truck 1st. before I settle down.

Wednesday—We went on a picknick tonite and I diddnt get home till way after 11 and ma set why was I so late and I sed we got to watching the beutifull Moon it was so pritty, well it diddnt go over so well, ma sed according to the all Manack the moon set at six 15: it was lucky to set at all. I don't feel like doing so just now.

They Wouldn't Dance With Her

"I'm Gwendra Hallett."
"Impossible!" he gasped.
"But I am!"
"I can't believe it! I . . . Good heavens!"

He was deeply distressed and agitated. Gwendra felt very sorry for him. Gently she said:

"Please don't be upset! Don't you see . . . you've not done anything wrong! Quite the other way round! You . . ."

"How could I ever dream that you were 'Gwendra'?" he cried.

How he was stroking her pride the right way, with every word he said! Of course he'd not known she was Gwendra! She'd seen that, as soon as he'd talked about overbearing what those men had said! He'd been so angry and disgusted, out here, after he'd overheard them, that he'd been too preoccupied to see her. And the shadows had hidden her.

"Good heavens!" he was saying, "Why, I can't get over this! I . . . simply don't know what to say!"

She laughed. Life was all lit up and set to music. She knew what to say!

"I thought you'd seen me, out here on the verandah, when those men were talking. I thought you were the kindest man in all the world, to ask a girl to dance when no one else would ask! Oh, you don't know how I admired you!"

"I heard someone say that Gwendra had gone home."
"I hadn't!"

There was a silence for a moment. Then he said:

"Listen please. As soon as I came into the room tonight with Lucy, I saw a girl I . . . liked the look of. I asked Lucy who you were. She said: 'That's Miss Hallett. She's one of our best players.' Well, you disappeared. When I saw you again, I was with Lucy, and I got her to introduce me. How could I have any idea that you were the Gwendra they had been talking about?"

The significance of that question was balm to Gwendra!

"I've had the happiest evening dancing with you, talking to you! I can't say how sorry I am for having dropped that brick just now!"

"But it's the kind of brick a girl loves to have dropped! You needn't ever apologise for dropping that kind of a brick!"

He joined in her laughter, and went on: "The Tates have asked me to stay on with them for another week. I said I might not be able to do so, but I now find that I shall."

"Streatin' isn't a bad suburb," remarked Gwendra sedately. "It's nice to be so near London!"

A silence can be very expressive. Something in Captain Lancing's expression suggested that if he'd dare he'd have said London was not what he would find it nice to be near!

"Will you," he said, "ask me here to play tennis, and let me be your partner?"

"I will!" said Gwendra.

"What about tomorrow afternoon?"

Tomorrow was Sunday. All the club would be here, and would see them playing together!

"That will do very well," said Gwendra.

They played wonderful tennis together! His forehand drive and Gwendra's brilliant volleying at the net won them their set against the club's best pair.

Every evening of the following week Roger Lancing played with Gwendra, and with no one else. The club wondered! They'd have wondered still more had they known that every evening he took Gwendra dancing or sat talking to her on her mother's verandah. They didn't know, because Gwendra didn't tell them, and neither did Lucy Tate.

The club sat up and rubbed its eyes when it was announced that Captain Lancing and Gwendra Hallett were engaged!

Gwendra might have rejoiced at her triumph, but—people who are in love with, and loved by, someone worth loving, don't bother their heads about petty things like that! Why should they? The most precious and lovely thing in the world is theirs, and that is all that matters!

A Light Story of what Happened when —

They Wouldn't Dance With Her

by Clare Thornton

can't dance! Why a chap should ask her—

"I know she's an awful lump to drag around," said the other man, who, however, sounded a little ashamed of himself, "I don't know why she comes to the dances. She ought not to expect us to dance with her just because we happen to like playing tennis with her! The girl's got no sense."

"Anyway, I'm booked up all the evening with Sheila."

"So'm I, with Delia. I say, old man, what d'you think of my new girl?"

They lowered their voices.

It was then that Gwendra saw that she was not the only person on the verandah. Leaning over the balustrade stood a tall man who now turned, so she saw his face. She recognised him as Captain Lancing, who was staying with the Tates. She knew by his expression that he had heard every word that Bob Archard and Tony Graham had said, and that he was furious and disgusted.

He stared straight at her.

She covered back, trembling and horrified! If she knew, by his expression, that he was disgusted by what he had heard, he would know by hers, that she was the girl of whom they'd been speaking!

Now Gwendra was a practical girl. She faced the situation as coolly as she could. Were she to leave the club and go home her mother would be surprised and she shrank from telling her the truth. Mum knew that she, Gwendra, was one of the best players in the club, and she believed that on this account she would have a good time at the club dances. Mum had no conception at all of what modern young men were like—how base and selfish and hard to please. No. She couldn't go home. They, she must make the best of things, and stay here.

She looked at her programme. There were six blanks before the scribbled initials of that pesty-faced youth whom Alice Herd had introduced to her. She always found that if other girls ever introduced men to her, they were always pesty-faced youths in their teens who danced abominably, and couldn't talk.

It would be a good thing, she thought, to go to the cloak-room and put in a quarter of an hour there. If any of the girls came in she'd pretend she was mending her dress. She was on the Ladies' Committee of the club and had been the first to suggest, at a Committee Meeting, that needles and cottons should be provided in the cloak-room.

She was crossing the lounge on her way to the cloak-room when she saw Captain Lancing with Lucy Tate. When he saw her, he turned quickly to Lucy and said something.

Lucy was bringing him over! Gwendra felt her face grow crimson!

"Yes," she said.

"Thank you! What about the next one?"

She pretended to consult the programme.... One had to keep up a sort of pretence, though, of course.

he knew.

"Yes, I've got that free."

"And Number Eight and Ten, and Twelve? I do hope you can spare me Twelve?"

Number Twelve was the supper dance!

Oh, this was awful!

"Captain Lancing, Miss Hallett," said Lucy, with an ill grace, and went away.

"Please may I have some dances?" said Captain Lancing.

Gwendra made a gallant effort to be self-possessed. The situation was terribly humiliating, but the only thing she must remember was that this man was being wonderfully kind! He had, she saw, very kind grey eyes. She kept her practically blank programme away from him.

Gwendra knew that there was only one thing to do, and that was, to accept this wonderful kindness, and let him victimise himself by dancing with her.

It would be a snub to the men who had treated her rudely! They wouldn't know what she knew, that he'd seen her on the verandah and knew who she was.

A few moments later, she and her Knight Errant were dancing.

Undoubtedly, she was a poor dancer. She knew it. She and her partner did not get on very well. Flushed and humiliated, she said:

"I'm afraid I'm not good at dancing, let's sit out!"

"Nonsense! It's I who am a poor partner, but we'll sit out, if you like."

He talked very interestingly about his life in India. He was home on leave, and was to rejoin his regiment early in September. His people were in the north of England. He was staying with friends in Streating.

"You're with the Tates," she said.

"Yes. They're old friends of my people."

He made no comments upon the Tates. Gwendra considered them unlikeable people. Lucy was only too glad to partner her, Gwendra, in the Ladies' Doubles in the club tournament, but did she introduce men to her at the dances? Not she! She never would have introduced this man had he not asked her to do so.

Because she felt herself so grateful to this chivalrous young man, she exerted herself to amuse and interest him. He seemed to find her congenial. They laughed a lot. She told him about the solicitor's office in which she worked, narrated amusing things that happened. She felt a thrill of bliss when Lucy passed with Bob, and they both glanced at her, and Captain Lancing, who at the moment, was laughing heartily at something she had said. Lucy was frowning; Bob looked amazed.

Never in her experience—poor girl, it hadn't been extensive—had Gwendra enjoyed a dance so much! Even the actual dancing proved, after the first venture, to be enjoyable, for her partner abandoned all idea of doing intricate steps, and did only simple steps that she could follow. Such "star performers" as Bob and Lance Mason and other members of the club were resentful if a girl couldn't do the very latest steps, and such girls as were favoured by them with invitations to dance had to practise quite a lot in order to prove worthy partners.

The supper-dance was the greatest fun imaginable! Particularly as their table was close beside that at which Lucy, who looked decidedly sulky, was sitting with Tony Hall. Lucy was fond of Tony and went everywhere with him, and he was supposed to be very much in love with her, but it was obvious that Lucy would have preferred the attentions of a handsome Army Captain to those of a rather weedy-looking youth who was a clerk in a bank and had very poor prospects. Of course, Captain Lancing had already danced several times with Lucy, and Gwendra had seen her initials on his programme opposite the numbers of future dances, but no doubt she'd expected him to ask her for the supper-dance.

They had a great man jokes, had Gwendra and her partner, but he could be serious at times. Looking round the supper-room, he said:

"Are these nearly all members of your club?"

"Nearly. There are about fifteen guests."

"A flourishing club, I should think. Is the standard of play high?"

"I think it is. We win most of our matches with other clubs."

She didn't add that she was one of those to whose credit this was due. He said:

"I gather you're one of the stars!"

Because she knew from whence he'd "gathered" the fact, she felt a little uncomfortable.

"Oh, I play an average game!"

"But that's not what I understood at all!"

She avoided his eye.

"Someone's been flattering me!"

She changed the subject, and talked of something amusing, so that he laughed, and Lucy's expression grew still more sulky and envious.

After that, Gwendra endured torture at the hands—and feet—of the pesty-faced youth whom Alice Herd had introduced. She saw that Captain Lancing was dancing with Lucy. Lucy danced beautifully, yet—he didn't look half so smiling and pleased as he'd looked as he'd danced with her.

She was delighted when Number Fifteen came, and he hurried up to her. Out of pity for him, she suggested that they should sit out, and he said:

"Let's! It'll be cool on the verandah."

She hadn't the happiest recollections of the verandah, but she followed him out. When they were sitting in two wicker chairs, and he lit her cigarette and his own, he said, rather abruptly:

"You know, I don't like this club of yours?"

"Don't you?" She felt her color rising. "Why?" What have you against it?"

"I don't care for the spirit of it."

"How is that?"

She thought: "I must keep cool; though I really can't see where this is leading!"

He was silent for a moment. In the dim light she couldn't see his face clearly, but she guessed that it looked grim.

"Every club has its spirit," he said, and his voice sounded contemptuous. "I know that. I've run clubs. It strikes me there's a rotten cadish spirit here!"

"Does it?" she murmured.

"Yes! Tonight, I happened to overhear two young men talking about a girl. Well, it made me furious! Of course, you'll know the girl they mean! She's evidently a good player, and they're all keen enough to play with her, but—they don't ask her to dance!"

Gwendra's breath was taken away! Why... why, what an astounding thing, that he should speak of this to her! What did he expect her to say!

She said nothing. She simply couldn't think of a word!

"I'd like to have seen the girl," he was saying, "so that I could judge for myself. But of course, she's gone home. I heard someone say so. I don't wonder, poor thing! Tell me, Miss Hallett, is this girl Gwendra—I don't hear her other name—is she so very unattractive?"

Gwendra gasped.

"Of course," he went on, "you're so kind that I expect you won't tell me the truth about her!"

She laughed—the oddest sound! She knew, of course, that he didn't know who she was! He had not seen her on the verandah!

"Why are you laughing?" he asked surprised. "I happen to have a sense of humour!" "But I don't see—"

"You'll see in a minute! You didn't hear Gwendra's other name, did you?"

"No! Why do you ask?"

"Because her other name happens to be Hallett."

She heard the wicker chair creak under a convulsive movement of his. His face was turned to her. She'd have given a lot to be able to see it clearly!

"What... what on earth do you mean?"

PICKLED CABBAGE AND CELERY

2 quarts chopped cabbage
1 cup sugar

1 cup celery seed
2 quarts chopped celery

1 cup salt
1 cup mustard seed

3 quarts vinegar
Cook all ingredients until cabbage is tender. Keep in stone crock.

MUSTARD PICKLE

4 cups vinegar
1 lb. mustard seed

1 lb. horseradish
1 lb. mustard

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup chopped green pepper

2 tbs. tumeric
1 pt. button onions

4 cups sliced cucumbers
4 cups cauliflower flowerets

2 tbs. celery seed
Boil vinegar, spices, and sugar five minutes, add remaining ingredients and simmer until thick. Keep in crock in cool place.

SEET PICKLED PEACHES

1 pkg. peaches
2 lbs. brown sugar

1 pt. vinegar
1 oz. stick cinnamon

Cloves
Boil sugar, vinegar and cinnamon twenty minutes. Dip peaches quickly in hot water, then rub off the fur with a towel. Stick each peach with four cloves. Put into syrup and cook until soft, using one-half of the peaches at a time.

SWEET PICKLED PEARS

Follow recipe for Sweet Pickled Peaches, using pears in place of peaches.

CELERY RELISH

1 1/2 doz. ears corn
1 small cabbage

1 bunch celery
4 onions

2 green peppers
2 qts. vinegar

2 cups sugar
1 cup flour

1 cup salt
1 tsp. mustard

1 tsp. cayenne
1 tsp. tumeric

Cut corn from cob. Force cabbage through a meat chopper. Separate celery stalks, remove leaves and chop. Peel onions and cut in thin slices. Wipe peppers and chop.

Put vegetables in preserving kettle and pour over one-half of the vinegar. Mix sugar, flour, salt, mustard, cayenne and tumeric and add remaining vinegar. Combine mixtures, bring to the boiling point and let simmer forty minutes.

GREEN VEGETABLE SANDWICH

Pass tender raw carrots, crisp celery, green peppers, a small onion and tender cucumbers through meat grinder. Mix with cooked salad dressing and spread between thin slices of white or graham bread.

Household Hints

A little lemon juice adds great zest to the hash made from left-overs.

Plan meals carefully, but not so closely that you are uncertain whether you are going to have enough.

The most fashionable tables are now being set with pure white china. Thin, white china—not cream color nor oyster white—is the choice of those who make a fine art of table setting.

The tailor marks the length of the buttonhole to be worked with beeswax, which holds the cut threads together. Ordinary soap will do almost as well for home work.
